The time for electing Senator Beck's successor is rapidly approaching, and that there should be any other than an unanimous voice for his re-election is painful in the extreme. No man in the Senate has been more vigorous during the last long and arduous session than he, and for the people of our State to make a public sacrifice of him now, when nearly every State in the Union would be glad to have such a man to elect, would be an act of folly and ingratitude, equaled only by the refusal of the National Convention in 1880 to nominate the lamented Thiden.—Lexington Drummer.

Go "away from home to hear the news" is an old saying. It will likely prove interesting to our readers to learn that the recent earthquake wrecked several buildings here and at Aberdeen. If the Ashland Endependent is correct, that's just what happened. In speaking of the earthquake, it says: "Aberdeen, Ohio, opposite Maysville, ky, was badly shaken up, as was Maysville, asveral house in each place being shakered to pleese. At this writing, no deaths have been reported. Aberdeen was reported as being the worse damaged."

Wiss it comes to destroying tobacco worms, pole-cats are right there every time. Near Midway, a farmers crop was being damaged nightly by some animal. He surmised the cause, and catching several large worms, killed them, saturated their bodies with strychnine, and left them in the field. The next morning five dead pole-cats were found.
One of the mules used by the workman on the railroad, just below Cabin Creek, ran off Friday aftermoon, and in his flight fell over a stump sustaining lingries that will probably necessitate his being killed. A colored hand white engaged in taking the gears off the struggling animal was cut in one of his arms. The wounds are serious and painful. They were dressed by Dr. John A. Mitchell.

That's Just Like Perkins.
The other day, as Bud Perkins, the Storekeeper, was hunting doves on Charlie Houston's farm, his attention was attracted by the piteous he wis of a dog in distress. On making a close search, he found that the howlings came from the canter of a large hemp stack which had been built flat on the ground by Mr. Houston's hands aix days before—the dog having been saleep in a shock and the stack being aimonst completed before it was discovered. Being overcome by his aympathy, Mr. Perkins at once sought a couple of hands and hired them to tear down the stack, release the poor dog, and build up the stack again in as good order as they found it. The dog was a fine large shepherd, which had dwindled to a mere shadow by his six days' confinement, and had chewed the hemp to a frazzle in a circle in the center, but never would have succeeded in working its way out.—Bourbon News.
